Along with an eclectic dining scene that offers an authentic range of delicious SoCal flavors, Costa Mesa is a cultural enclave in Orange County. The award-winning Segerstrom Center for the Arts is one of the largest performing arts complexes in the United States. The newest addition to the center is the Julianne and George Argyros Plaza where free events take place year-round on an outdoor stage, situated adjacent to the new Center 360 Café.

As a growing culinary capital of Orange County, Costa Mesa is home to James Beard Award-nominated and celebrity chefs, and some of the best new restaurants in Southern California. But indulging in food is not the only way to experience Costa Mesa. Visitors can step inside the largest shopping destination on the West Coast, with hundreds of designer retailers and unique boutiques like Hermes, Louis Vuitton, Henri Bendel and Gucci at South Coast Plaza. This world-class shopping experience offers more than 30 dining establishments, including Din Tai Fung – the famous Chinese dumpling house – as well as valet parking, concierge services and VIP amenities.

Costa Mesa is centrally located between Los Angeles and San Diego and just minutes away from beaches and major Southern California attractions.
